:woohoo:

A farmer, who is not familiar with new technology, never went on a plane, but had to visit his sick daughter in California. He asked the flight attendant where the bathroom is, and he pointed all the way in the back of the plane, but he said don't press the third button. He went in, and pressed the first button. It thoroughly cleaned his front private. The second one cleaned his back private thoroughly. The memory haunting him of the flight attendant saying not to press the third one, curiously, he pressed it, and ended up in the hospital. He woke up and said "What happened?" "Well..." The doctor replied, "the third button on the plane, was the tampon remover."
